OFFLEY WILL BE BACK TO PROBE ANOTHER AFFAIR?

Rumor Has Special Investigator Working on McBride-Afong White Slave Affair

Owing to rumors which were rife in federal court circles this morning, it has developed that William M. Offley, the special investigator from this attorney-general's office who recently paid a mysterious visit to Honolulu to probe certain local judicial matters, may again jump into the limelight, here in connection with the session of the October grand jury which commenced this morning.

Rumor has it that Mr. Offley either is on his way to or shortly will depart for Hawaii as a witness in the matter of Claudius H. McBride and Henry Afong, who recently were arrested at the instance of District Attorney Jeff McCann on a charge of having violated the white slave act, and whose case was dismissed by acting United States Commissioner Charles S. Davis. Dame Rumor intervenes again at this point, and says that the October grand jury will go into an investigation of the case.

M. A. Thomas, special assistant to the attorney-general, and J. W. Thompson, assistant district attorney, when interviewed this morning said that they did not know whether the grand jury would investigate the case. Mr. Offley's name does not appear on the list of witnesses who have been, or will be, summoned to appear before the grand jury. The names of Claudius McBride and Henry Afong are not on the list.

In connection with this there is another rumor that Mr. Offley is coming here at the instance of Jeff McCann to make an investigation of the McBride-Afong case.

MORE MYSTERIOUS GERMAN VESSELS REACH THIS PORT

Consume Long Time Crossing Pacific—Deny Making Any Calls While En Route

Two large German steamers, their mission one of mystery, their officers silent as the grave, loomed up on the horizon off the port of Honolulu at daylight, while port officials are for once puzzled regarding their disposition, facing as they do a congested harbor with its limited berthing facilities.

Fully disguised, with tint of funnels materially changed, names obliterated at the hand of their crew, all distinguishing marks removed, the visitors ride at anchor off the harbor, awaiting the action of the federal health authorities who will insist that the steamers be fumigated and in every way placed in sanitary condition.

SECOND M'CARN TRIAL SET FOR NEXT MONDAY

Rumor Says Prosecution May Enter Nolle Prose; Cathcart Fails on Confirmation

While there is some talk that the prosecution may enter a nolle prosequere when the case of Jeff McCann is called for its second trial before Circuit Judge Whitney next Monday morning, City and County Attorney J. W. Cathcart does not confirm it. It is the general opinion that no such action will be taken and that three weeks more will be taken to pass over the same ground again for the benefit of a new jury.

On the motion of Attorney Cathcart this morning that the hearing of the second trial be set for some time early next week, Judge Whitney fixed the date at next Monday morning, at 9 o'clock. Cathcart's motion was opposed by Attorney Joseph Lightfoot, who urged immediate trial, beginning tomorrow morning. The city and county attorney explained that he had a large number of affairs in his office, in the way of other criminal cases, to dispose of.

It also was explained that L. Andrews, special deputy attorney-general, who has been assisting the prosecution, is too ill to continue the strenuous work at present. Judge Whitney stated that he could not very well preside for at least two days, Friday and Saturday, as he has been selected as acting associate justice of the supreme court to sit with that body on those days in the argument of the Kewalo reclamation case.

A special venire of 25 talesmen was drawn today, from which the second McCann jury is to be chosen. The special venire consists of Ernest E. Lyman, Louis D. Warren, Robert N. Corbaley, John A. Bortfield, George F. Campbell, Albert V. Gear, Benjamin K. Assam, Anthony T. Silver, Frank K. Archer, James W. Lloyd, Sidney T. Carr, James Nott, Jr., Clarence W. Macfarlane, Richard L. Gilliland, James H. Peterson, Frederick S. Lyman, Sr., William P. Armstrong, James Guild, Adolph B. Gertz, James C. Kaley, Edward B. Friel, Edmond Swan, William H. Stewart, William W. Chamberlain and Benjamin H. Zablan.

Jury Fails to Agree.

After having been out more than six hours, the jury in the McCann trial announced at 1 o'clock Sunday morning that it could not reach a verdict. The instructions were given the jury at 7:15 o'clock Saturday evening, following a lengthy address by city and county attorney John W. Cathcart, which closed the argument for the prosecution.

At 7:20 o'clock the jurymen retired to the jury room, and shortly after announced that they wished to go to dinner. Accompanied by the bailiff, they repaired to a downtown hotel, returning at 8 o'clock. After about half an hour of deliberation, they sent out a call for newspapers. The jurymen then called for the gun which Jeff McCann had in his possession at the time of the alleged assault in the federal building. Later, they requested a copy of the court's instructions, and FENWAY PARK, Boston, Oct. 12.—A game and splendid finish to a thrilling battle as was ever recorded in a world's baseball series brought their third straight victory today to the Boston Braves.

Twelve innings of nerve-racking, speedy playing ended in triumph for Stalling's men by the score of 5 to 4, and as a consequence of the three victories in three games played a majority of the baseball critics practically concede the world's pennant to the Braves.

The Philadelphia Athletics looked like certain winners in the tenth inning when they shoved two runs over the plate. For five full innings before that not a run had been scored, and when the Athletics got their bases full even the most loyal Boston fans shook their heads and hoped against hope that the Bostonians could do something with the Philadelphia pitcher in that critical last half of the ninth.

The nerve of the Braves, exhibited in the National league when they fought their way from the bottom to the top, held good and while the thousands of Boston fans went wild with excitement the Braves put across the two runs necessary to tie the score.

The eleventh inning saw no change, neither team being able to get a man across the plate.

GAME CLOSE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

An idea of the closeness of the game may be gained from the fact that at the end of the ninth inning each side had exactly the same number of runs, hits and errors.

The weather was fine again today, being cool and clear.

"Bullet" Bush, one of the heroes of the world's series last year, was sent into the box by Connie Mack of Philadelphia, with Wallie Schang catching. Stalling sent Taylor, who has been doing fine work all season, in to pitch, with the reliable Hank Gowdy catching.

(NOTE.—Further details of today's game will appear in the second edition. As the game went three extra innings today, the dispatches from Boston were necessarily delayed.)

CHARITIES OF CITY WILL BE REORGANIZED

A complete reorganization of the work of the local Associated Charities, which ultimately will result in its being placed on a more modern and business-like basis and more in keeping with organizations of its kind on the mainland, will be undertaken with the arrival in Honolulu October 19 of Miss Margaret Bergen, associate secretary of the American Association of Societies for Organizing Charities, who comes direct from New York City.

Miss Bergen is coming to Honolulu at the request of the Associated Charities, the purpose of her visit being to put the work on a modern basis, and also to be at the service of other organizations in the city which may wish to seek advice along lines of philanthropy and social welfare work. "All that I know is that Miss Bergen will put the local work on a business-like and scientific basis, and bring it up to date as possible," said Manager Spencer Bowen this morning. "Miss Bergen is a woman of mature age and judgment and a woman who is able in every way to grasp the local situation and get results without friction."

Miss Bergen is able to give advice regarding charity and social welfare work owing to her varied experience. She has represented two or three different lines of the work at national conferences of the association of charities and corrections. She began her career as the head of an orphanage in Indiana, and later was superintendent of schools in an Indiana city. From there she was taken to be district superintendent of one of the departments of the Chicago associated charities and later was made trainer of all the new workers coming on to the Chicago staff.

In order to receive this last position it was necessary that she be familiar with all phases of charitable and social welfare work. In Chicago, she then was taken to New York City, where she has been an officer of the national association for organizing charities, and from where she is sent out to cities all over the United States, sometimes spending as much as a year and a half in a single city organizing the charity work there.

BELGIUM WILL GET WAR FUNDS SENT BY HAWAII

Relief Committee Decides to Add $2000 to Donations and Forward Now

Honolulu, T. H., Oct. 12, 1914.

Editor Star-Bulletin:

In view of the terrible suffering amounting now to actual starvation, which is reported from Belgium, caused by the war, the war relief committee met this morning and, after some discussion, decided to take from the funds in their hands all of which so far has been contributed specifically for Belgium, and add enough thereto to make $2000 and forward it at once. It appears that Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Company, bankers of New York City, have consented to receive and see to the distribution of funds contributed for the relief of the Belgian war sufferers.

The Bank of Hawaii very cordially and at its own expense called as follows:

J. P. Morgan & Co., Bankers, "New York City."

"Two thousand contributed by citizens Hawaii relief Belgium war widows and orphans."

In addition to this the committee took steps toward placing relief cash boxes at various points in the city to receive such small contributions as might thus be collected.

Respectfully,
JAS. A. RATH,
Secretary War Relief Committee.
